SLAGEL IS SWUNG OFF

The Eminent Kentucky Scoundrel
Rewarded at Last.

Crime for Which the Death Penalty
Was Paid—One of the Worst
Murders on Record—
The Execution.

ROCKWELL, Ky., March 15.—Frank Wolford Slagel, who was hanged here to-day was condemned for the most shocking crime ever committed in Pulaski County—a cold-blooded and pitiless assassination of three men, while in a deep and intoxicated slumber, for their little money and property. The evidence, however, connecting him with the offense is purely circumstantial, but these circumstances are most potent and conclusive.

On the evening of the 14th of last August a squad of men who were on their way to cut railroad cross-ties, about two miles from Flat Rock, on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, were attracted by moonlight which poured from the foot of a bluff near by. The men went to the place and were horror-stricken to find two of their fellow-workmen, John O'Dair and James O'Dair, with their heads terribly mangled with some heavy instrument—one of them dead—the other, James O'Dair, in a dying condition. The latter retained sufficient life to state that Slagel and a man by the name of George Taylor had killed his brother and James O'Dair by striking him on the head with an ax, and had struck him in the same manner and thrown him over the cliff.

The workmen then went up to a rock house on the top of the cliff immediately above where the bodies were found, and which they knew had been occupied by the O'Dairs, one Joseph, O'Dair, and the other, James O'Dair, as a cache. Here they found O'Dair's body on the edge of the cliff, on the outside of the rock house, his head also mangled with an ax, which was found in the rock house, bloody. The other three axes, had been used by the O'Dairs, and were found in the rock house, but no blood upon them. Three pallets lying side by side with the rest toward the fire had a pool of blood in the middle of each. The fourth pallet laid transversely at the head of the three was unstained by blood, and at its foot his shoes.

Telegrams were immediately sent to Monticello, Ky., Slagel's old home, thirty-five miles from the scene of the slaughter. He was there found, arrested, and lodged in the County Jail.

On trial in last October it appeared that on the evening of the 14th of August the condemned, in company with the O'Dairs and Claiborn, went to Mark Love's saloon at Flat Rock, where Claiborn, in the presence of the O'Dairs, bought a quantity of whisky, paid $1 and received $9 in change for a $10 bill.

A few minutes afterward Slagel got a $20 bill, changed, to the shade of the saloon, and shortly thereafter was seen leaving the saloon on the knee of one of the O'Dairs. They all left the saloon together, and returned to the rock house, at which time the O'Dairs were seen to be drunk and were all intoxicated except Slagel, who was apparently sober. Only a moment after the O'Dairs had left the saloon and he had no money. The O'Dairs were known to have brought about $40 to the camp with them.

On the 13th of last August, Slagel came to the O'Dairs' saloon, on the railroad, about a mile from the scene of the tragedy, and inquired if the express could be flagged at Greenwood that night. On being informed that the express could not be flagged at Greenwood and was heard talking to an unknown person. He was next seen at Greenwood Station, where he made the same inquiries and received the same answer. The next day at Burnside, on his way to Monticello, he bought a pistol and cartridges. Arrived at Monticello, he met a friend, one James Cox, that he expected to be accused of the killing of Jim O'Dair and James O'Dair. He was next seen at a saloon at Monticello, where he sold a watch for $5, which proved to be Jim O'Dair's watch. When the telegram was received and the news was spread, he had in his possession $10 and a gun belonging to Claiborn, and had on Claiborn's coat, vest, hat and boots, all of which he claimed to have bought.

No strong and conclusive was the evidence that his attorneys outlined themselves chiefly to an attempt to influence the jury to fix his punishment at life imprisonment instead of death; but the jury, after a short deliberation, found him guilty, and fixed his punishment at death. The judge sentenced the prisoner to be hanged on the 28th of January.

The case was taken to the Court of Appeals, where it was affirmed, and the prisoner was not set free. Slagel was taken to the Court of Appeals, where it was affirmed, and the prisoner was not set free. Slagel was taken to the Court of Appeals, where it was affirmed, and the prisoner was not set free.

Slagel was a young man about twenty years of age, and seemed perfectly uneducated about his fate. He had spent the night, ate no breakfast, and was the perfect picture of distress this morning. A reporter had an interview with him. He said: "I did not go to the killing, but I was present and saw another do it. I got the money and things not to tell. There is a woman in the case who was present and could tell all about it."

He professed religion last night. The crowd in the jail numbered about five thousand people. He was hung at 1 o'clock. There was no excitement. The gallows was the old fashion upright, seven feet high, with a cross-beam and strap, the drop being six feet.

It was situated in a large enclosure, thirteen feet high, and none of the anxious crowd were admitted, those made only including officers, day-men and reporters. A special police force, armed with guns, guarded the enclosure. Two physicians and a clergyman were present, and one of them for $25, and it will at once be turned over to them without burial.

A Thrilling Suicide.

ROCKWELL, Ky., March 15.—The General in this city, made famous by Sand

Pat, was the scene on Friday of a desperate suicide. An unknown man stood on the railroad bridge, which crosses the river just below the jail, and jumped off. He was hurled over the falls and the body has not yet been recovered. Last Sunday Maynard took down the E. St. John, son, who registered as from New York, mysteriously disappeared. Detectives are searching for him. It is believed that he is the man who jumped over the falls.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

More Reports of General Graham's Victory Coming In.

LEXINGTON, March 15.—Further details of the desperate battle yesterday between Graham's forces and the rebels near the Daniel Wells, continue to arrive to-day. During the confusion, which ensued when the rebels made their wild rush upon the British lines and caused them to retreat, the newspapers reported that other non-combatants took down the fray and used their revolvers freely and with deadly effect against the enemy.

After the battle the O'Dair's camp and three villages were burned. Among the trophies O'Dair's standard was taken and Towell's captured. The British losses are considerably heavier than first reported. The number killed reaches into the thousands.

General Graham's forces are returning to Lexington. O'Dair's Dignified to the hills. The Arabs retired before the English slowly and silently. They were defeated, not put to rout. They walked away, as if sauntering through a bazaar, with their arms folded or swinging at their sides. Many were seen to be laughing and laughing at their companions' speed. Judges of native character think the Arabs are so allied by family ties that the great loss of life and property, and break their faith in Mahdi and their sheiks.

Marriage Under Difficulties.

NEWPORT, March 15.—Mr. Robert Bailey Wade, a large importer of New York City, and Mrs. Ellen Corbett Wade, of the same city, were married here to-day. The bridegroom is a son of George Wade, of Brooklyn, and came here to be married. The bride is the daughter of George Corbett, of Brooklyn. Several days ago Mr. Wade telegraphed to his father-in-law, asking him if he would solemnize their marriage. The letter was answered and inquired made as to the lady's status. A telegram was received from Mr. Wade, who stated that there was no legal impediment to the marriage, and that he was the canon of the Episcopal Church there was an impediment, since there had been a divorce in the case of the bride's father, which the church does not recognize. The clergyman then declined to perform the ceremony.

Mr. Wade was here, and so did Mrs. Corbett and her friends. To-day Mr. Wade got a marriage permit, and succeeded in having a clergyman to perform the ceremony. The ceremony was performed at 10 o'clock.

The Lasker Middle.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15.—The Subcommittee on Foreign Affairs held a meeting this morning and practically agreed upon a report, although there was further consideration at the meeting held some time during today. The report was drawn up by Mr. Lasker, who recognized the difference between the House and the Senate in the matter of the Lasker middle. It will substantially uphold the action of the House in rejecting the Lasker middle, and will not deny the right of the Senate to decline to deliver it to the Reichstag.

THE MINING DISASTER.

Searching for the Bodies of the Unfortunate Victims.

Heartrending Scenes Around the Mine—Terrible Condition of the Corpses When Found—A Gloomy Community.

LEITCHBURGH, Va., March 15.—Dispatches from Pocahontas state that the catastrophe yesterday has cast a gloom over the residents of the village. It increases rather than diminishes, as the frightful result of the explosion becomes known. The work of recovering the bodies of the unfortunate miners is progressing as fast as possible under the circumstances. Superintendent Caldwell took down the mine and recovered miners from Chesterfield County are hard at work and have succeeded in recovering the remains of a number of the dead. Nearly all the bodies are mangled beyond recognition. Many bodies are separated from the trunks, necessitating the removal of the corpses in pieces. The wives and children of many of the victims are at the scene of the disaster and their grief is heartrending.

Pocahontas, Va., March 15.—The mines are still on fire. The only means of putting it out is to close and seal the mines. This is now being done, and the mines will remain sealed probably for two weeks. No more of the bodies will be recovered.

TALKING THIRTY HOURS.

Recentities of an Englishman Who Has Done Well for Posterity.

HANDOVER, N. Y., March 15.—But for the ill-fated of Mathias Mergride of Union County, Wayne County, Pa., five miles from this village, his sixty-four children, grand-children and great-grand-children would have celebrated at the home-land. On Monday, the sixty-fourth anniversary of his birth, Mergride, who he himself has lived over sixty, Mr. Mergride recently passed his eighty-sixth year. He was born in England in 1798, and came to America in 1834. While he never obtained any special business prominence in the community, his recentities have made him a celebrity not only in his own but adjoining counties, where he exhibited them periodically for sixty years. In his prime it was difficult for him to take himself beyond a distance of half a mile, and he could talk for hours with his voice at that pitch.

It is related as a fact by friends of his that he once talked at a hotel in Handover, Pa., for twenty-four hours, when he offered $100 to the guests who would remain with him. Without a modulation of his voice, he talked for $100,000 he would not until he had exhausted his voice. He continued talking six hours longer. Soon after Mergride became a citizen of Handover and was elected to the office of justice of the peace in Wayne County, and was subsequently appointed postmaster of the village.

WATTERSON'S PLEA.

What He Says About His News-Gathering Methods.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Henry Waterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, appeared before the Joint Committee on Literature, in advocacy of the passage of a bill granting a copyright of eight hours to newspapermen. He explained the act as designed for the sole purpose of defeating concurrent piratical publications, that the bill was universal in its application, and could not affect the country press. It is a plan of the latter statement, Waterson said, the morning papers go to press at 3 A. M.; limitation expires at 11; consequently the provisions of the bill do not act upon the republication of matter in the morning papers by papers issued in the afternoon. He then gave an illustration of the effect that might employ a special correspondent to report very fully on one great event. Under the present law, a paper published alongside one's own, sold at cheaper rates, and issued in the morning, would actually defeat the enterprise.

Mr. Horner desired to know if it was intended to report very fully on one great event. Under the present law, a paper published alongside one's own, sold at cheaper rates, and issued in the morning, would actually defeat the enterprise.

Mr. Waterson replied that the limit of one hundred words in the bill would practically defeat the piracy of the morning papers by papers issued in the afternoon. He then gave an illustration of the effect that might employ a special correspondent to report very fully on one great event. Under the present law, a paper published alongside one's own, sold at cheaper rates, and issued in the morning, would actually defeat the enterprise.

MR. TILLER IS AT HOME.
Holding Receptions at the Lindell
Hotel, St. Louis.

He Gives Further Particulars of How He Got Away With His Plunder—Theory as to His Accomplices.

St. Louis, March 15.—Prentiss Tiller,
the express robber, arrived from Chicago
at 9:30 this morning and is now in the Lindell Hotel, consulting with General Superintendent Morseman, of the Pacific Express Company. To a reporter who went last night to Springfield, Ill., and returned with him on the train, Tiller said he made three separate trips to and from the express office on Sunday, March 2, carrying out bags of stolen money. He would have returned for the fourth bag, but sprained his ankle.

That night he crossed the bridge to East St.
Louis, but returned, packed up his things,
and shipped his trunk by American Express to Chicago. On Monday and Monday evening he went over to East St. Louis and took the train to Chicago. He stayed there five days, and on Sunday night last started for Milwaukee, where he arrived on Monday.

The total amount recovered is about $16,
000, of which $15,000 is cash, $1,000 jewelry,
and the balance checks.

A requisition for McFadden was forwarded from Jefferson City by the noon train yesterday. Detective Furlong, Inspector Sherman. The theory of the detectives is that after the robbery McFadden took the plunder out of the city, it being a ruse to draw the police to the city. He sent him to Milwaukee, but on Tiller's arrival there he had forgotten the name he had assumed.
He then telegraphed to Tiller, who, however, did not answer, but was arrested.
Tiller, in the meantime, recollecting the name, got possession of the plunder at the express office, and might have escaped but for the accident at the trunk store.

The St. Louis Bank Defalcation.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 15.—The cash accounts of the Laclede Bank are short $20,000,
and P. J. Dietrichs, aged forty-five, the teller, is missing. The defalcations, as shown by the books, cover the latter part of January and first half of February. February 23 Dietrichs left the bank, saying he was going to Hot Springs for his health.
Nothing has been heard of him since. The discovery of the defalcation was not made until March 3. The Laclede Bank is protected by two bonds of $100,000 each, with personal security, and another in the Fidelity
and Casualty Company, of New York.
Dietrichs' brothers say he is in Hot Springs.
Diligent newspaper search can not find him
there.

After the Prize-Fighting Blackguards
BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 15.—Justice Stricker, of Graydon, called the case of the people against Jas. Giddons, defendant, pleading not guilty, charged with having acted as referee in the Dempsey-Bailey fight. Witnesses for the prosecution testified that he witnessed the fight. Nine rounds were fought and the fight ended hard gloves
being used. The referee was Jas. Giddons.
Giddons gave bond in $500 to appear. The defense is that it was not a prize-fight, but simply a boxing match, and that soft gloves were worn. The principals are still at large.

Alleged Train Robbery.
LIMA, O., March 15.—Train No. 3, on the Chicago and Atlantic Railroad, yesterday
was robbed by two fellows at the crossing, near here, of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Road. Three passengers were robbed of all their money and watches.
They were sleeping in their seats at the time,
and their clothing was cut by the robbers
to get their money. The conductor discovered them but they covered him with revolvers, ordering him to stop. He did so and they escaped.
